As search engines become more familiar with the content and structure of the new websites they begin to rank organically for some local search terms.

We understand how this process works and match it to our Google Ads strategy.

We target local search terms initially but as the site begins to become visible for these terms we expand our Google Ads campaign to bring in traffic from a larger area and range of search terms.

We also 'front load' some of your Google Ads spend, so that more money is spent in the initial 2 months, when the site is less naturally visible, than the following 4 months.

We spread the cost evenly for you!
